Is this the Dirtiest Family in the UK?

Hands Up For Hygiene
in Primary School

Make sure that you have read and understood the article Is this the Dirtiest Family in the UK? in The Daily Soapbox.

Think about and discuss; the family mentioned in this article and how they should improve their lives; what they should have done to avoid the awful mess that they created; how, when they are allowed back into their home, they will have to keep it in a much better condition.

Use a sheet of paper to write down some good advice about:

- leading a cleaner and healthier lifestyle so the family learns and understands the reasons for keeping their home clean
- how this could be done
- some good hygiene practices for everyday life, especially the preparation of and eating of food.

When you are happy with your ideas record them here to show the family how to improve.

The diagram is a flowchart with five rectangular boxes connected by arrows. It begins with a cartoon illustration of a family of four (a man, a woman, a girl, and a boy) standing in a very messy, cluttered room. The room is filled with boxes, papers, and trash. A large arrow points from this illustration to the first empty rectangular box. From the first box, an arrow points to the second empty box. From the second box, an arrow points down to the third empty box. From the third box, an arrow points left to the fourth empty box. From the fourth box, an arrow points down to the fifth empty box. Finally, an arrow points from the fifth box to a cartoon illustration of the same family of four standing in a clean, tidy living room with a sofa.

Record your ideas using ICT or be creative and produce a poster/leaflet/song/radio jingle that the family will find an interesting reminder.
